

Itac acquires Delvemade

Itac has completed the purchase of Delvemade Limited, a business that we have supplied with Silicones and Polyurethanes for over two decades.

Delvemade, founded in 1991 by Susan and Tony Condron, provides a range of branded, patented, products for roof repair and recoating. Since inception, the company has enjoyed sustained growth, which last year alone saw a twenty percent increase in sales.

Following the purchase, Delvemade has become a subsidiary of Itac. For a period of time, to facilitate a smooth hand-over, both founding directors will continue in their familiar roles within the business. The business has already been relocated the short distance from Swinton to our head office and manufacturing facility in Radcliffe, Manchester.

Itac had its sights set on Delvemade for quite some time. It's a well-established growing business, with an excellent reputation. It services a niche sector of the construction industry, which is one of our core markets. Over the years Itac has worked in partnership with the roofing specialist to develop a unique system and accompanying product range. The production system, manufacture and most importantly the product quality will remain unchanged.

It is our intention to develop Delvemade further by bringing new products to market and improving the business through new initiatives and the benefits of our research, marketing, manufacturing skills and facilities.
